CENTENARY
JUBILEE
At Vauxhall
GRAND FETES, and
3 Mr. SIMPSONS
ALL FOR One Shilling

SONG, BY MR. BEULER.

Have you heard of the Wonders at far-fam'd Vauxhall?
The wonders of which is quite thrilling?
The Town has grown wild at the expense of
Of Vauxhall being now but A SHILLING.
Oh! Thousands fall Filly there'll be ev'ry night!
The lanes and heds will be killing,
Oh! how we'll love it for the splendour so bright,
All of which we're to have for A SHILLING.
There's a Crown made of leaves, quite as big as St. Paul's,
With wonder such auster bring,
And it comes you should give for the evening night,
Not a trifle as small as ONE SHILLING.
There's a double exhibit of Fine Works so grand,
The flow that grows the air chilling,
I'll not see the like! 'Tis delicious! I will say,
I shall think as of paying me SHILLING.
Ninety thousand odd, lamps will be lit ev'ry night,
The women's on every side,
To light all the world in this Jubilee Year,
But how can it be done for A SHILLING?
These Ballons will be sent on the clouds in a trice;
But how all the way will be killing,
But you may be sure that we every good thing
Can do for these for A SHILLING.
Why, the Fine Works themselves are worth double the price,
To every one I am assuring,
But, I think 'tis a shame it might not be so—
Don't expect of so much for A SHILLING.
There large ships there are for young children and boys,
And all who see feel of quaffing,
Great music, plays, except all we have thanks,
For letting us have for A SHILLING.
Why, I'm told that ev'ry house it will take at the least,
All the money's price, for an evening, for
And all for the price of A SHILLING!
Now, my dear Mr. Simpson, I have not forgot,
The impossible part of my killing,
But do they, pray tell me, illumine you?
Is there anybody of low charge of A SHILLING?
And does your sweet self, agate head your sweet form,
Close more to show us your SHILLING,
And doing the Fine Works so gracefully how?
The really too much for A SHILLING.

But the Mass drops her head—oh! the truth must be told,
With great every heart will be killing,
For Folly ever is the last one we see go,
To our darling Vauxhall for A SHILLING!
