HISTORY

We have a quantity of these wall-lights available. They have been kept in storage for some years having been removed from the Sheldonian Theatre in the 2004 renovations.

Pictured hear with candelabra from the tiered pews - quantity also available.

The Sheldonian is a remarkable provenance from which to have salvaged fittings. Completed in 1669 it was Sir Christopher Wren's first significant architectural work. The ceiling is a marvel and represented an engineering breakthrough. It is the seat of the Oxford "Congregation" and serves as the venue for numerous University ceremonial functions including Matriculation.
