

LASSCO

www.lassco.co.uk

THREE PIGEONS

LASSCO Three Pigeons

Milton Common,

Oxfordshire OX9 2JN

+44 (0)1844 277188

3pigeons@lassco.co.uk

BRUNSWICK HOUSE

30 Wandsworth Road,

London SW8 2LG

+44 (0) 20 7394 2100

brunswick@lassco.co.uk

EARLY 19TH CENTURY COPY OF SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS' SELF-PORTRAIT AS REMBRANDT.

Oil-on-board

Possibly a 19th century student copy of the Royal Academy study. Portrait of a woman verso.

Gilt framed

DIMENSIONS: 65cm (25½") High, 52cm (20½") Wide, 7cm (2¾") Deep

STOCK CODE: P01176

HISTORY

Sir Joshua Reynolds painted many self-portrait paintings during his career in the hope that he would raise his own status as an artist and cultural figure. He had a theory of art based around the need for modern British artists to copy the Old Masters, becoming fascinated by the 'Dutch master' Rembrandt whose portrait prints were revered in Britain at this time. Reynolds emulated Rembrandt by using himself as a model to practice different facial expressions, sometimes even changing the shape of his face to resemble the Dutch artist's distinctive, jowls.

In this picture, the costume, pose, dramatic chiaroscuro and broad and rapid brush-work all refer to the work of Rembrandt.