

LASSCO

www.lassco.co.uk

THREE PIGEONS

LASSCO Three Pigeons

Milton Common,

Oxfordshire OX9 2JN

+44 (0)1844 277188

3pigeons@lassco.co.uk

BRUNSWICK HOUSE

30 Wandsworth Road,

London SW8 2LG

+44 (0) 20 7394 2100

brunswick@lassco.co.uk

NATHANIEL SPARKS, ST. BOTOLPHS CHURCH,

1914,

Mounted and in its original frame, an original dry-point engraving by the artist and painter-etcher Nathaniel Sparks showing St Botolph's church on Bishopsgate in the City of London. The corner building in the middle foreground is the White Hart Inn which had existed as a hostelry continuously on the site since 1377 until it was closed for commercial redevelopment in 2014. Signed by the artist.

DIMENSIONS: 45.3cm (17^{3/4}"") High, 50cm (19^{3/4}"") Wide, 1.7cm (0^{3/4}"") Deep

PRICE: £450

STOCK CODE: PS0009 B

HISTORY

"Nathaniel Sparks won a scholarship to The Bristol College of Art and Science at the tender age of 10, studying under R Bush, ARE (Associate of the Royal Society of Painter-Etchers & Engravers). In 1900, at the age of 20, a further scholarship brought him to the RCA (Royal College of Art) in London where Frank Short, President of the Royal Society of Painter-Etchers & Engravers, was Head of the Engraving School ... During this period as a student he practised his skills and must have produced many etchings. Sadly, only a few remain. However, whilst studying he was commissioned by the famous J M Whistler to pull (print) his 'Venice Set' and in 1905 he received a Diploma in Decorative Painting from the RA and was made an ARE ...

The next year saw the first of a long line of annual exhibits at both the RA and the RSPE (Royal Society of Painter-Etchers & Engravers) and it is interesting to note that Queen Mary purchased at least two of his prints: 'The Shadow and the Shade' and, in 1915, 'Westminster Abbey seen through the Fountain’.

In 1909, he was elected a Fellow of the RSPE and won a Gold Medal for ‘Outstanding Artwork’. His success seemed assured. However the First World War intervened and in 1915 he found himself making gauges for the munitions factories, working a punishing 100 hours per week, engraving the fine calibration required for accurate machining.

With the armistice came a return to a very different civilian world of mass unemployment where the rise of photography had led to a decline in the demand for the engravers’ skills. Nathaniel never recovered from this break in his career and, although he subsequently produced many fine prints and beautiful watercolours, he faded quietly into old age and obscurity.

Perhaps the final blow was when his printing press was blown up by a German bomb in 1940. He died, lonely and without the recognition he deserved, in Somerton, Somerset in 1956”

– The Nathaniel Sparks Gallery